software for LinuxQ: How can I call laravel built in middleware for controller? How can I call laravel built in middleware for controller? A: if you are using laravel 5, then the following code will work.

```
Route::group(['middleware' =>'verify'], function () { Route::post('/prices','MyController@postPrices'); });

but if you are using laravel 5.1 or later then you do not need to add any middleware unless you want to modify the behavior of that middleware. `Route::post('/prices','MyController@postPr` ices'); Q: How to recover the default "title" when editing a PDF file I am looking for a way to recover the default PDF title, when I open a pdf document. So I opened a pdf document with open in Mac and modified the title. The original title is gone. Does any one have any Idea how to do that? A: Assuming you are asking about a "destructive" title change, this is an easily done task that is only hindered by a few specific programs on macOS. I'm writing this piece as I notice several recent questions asking about this exact subject. The correct application to remedy this condition is Apple's Preview.app. However, it's worth noting that a number of other apps on macOS -- namely, Apple's own Pages -- either come with this defect, or it's easy to implement this very basic feature. First, the summary. If you want to change the title, open the document in Preview, and the following dialog should appear: If you click "OK", this will create a new file in the same directory. The new file is always created with a title of "Untitled". Therefore, you should have a backup of your original title before you begin. The new file will have the same title. After doing this,

you should have a full set of toolbars and controls that you can click and use to amend the title, and 3da54e8ca3
