Get a FREE ChinaScribe trial. If you are a non-native speaker, then you are probably familiar with how difficult it can be to create or edit documents that include Chinese characters. Although you can download various applications that come with Chinese language support for your keyboard and you can manually modify your files, there is an easier way. You can use ChinaScribe, a simple, yet powerful dictionary that can help you create and edit two and three-lines Chinese documents. Unsophisticated user interface ChinaScribe provides you with a user-friendly layout that makes it possible even for novices to easily understand its abilities and fully benefit from them. The dictionary features multiple functions, as you can search a word by its pronunciation (Pinyin) or its characters and also look up the Chinese correspondent for an English word. In case the word you are looking for can be translated in multiple ways, all similar meanings are displayed in the main window. Furthermore, a link is provided for every entry, making it easier for you to find the exact term. Create and edit documents You can use this handy program with either Microsoft Office or OpenOffice, but you can choose an easier alternative, as well. Aside from its useful dictionary function, the program also packs a built-in word processor that allows you to create and edit documents that include Chinese characters. It is possible to update your application by importing entries either from ChinaScribe users or from other dictionary tools, such as CC-CEDICT (Chinese-English), HanDeDict (Chinese-German) and CFDict (Chinese-French). In addition, you can customize your own content and then share it online, thus contributing to the creation of a more comprehensive database. Highly user-accessible Although it may not be very useful to actually learn Chinese, this versatile utility provides you with an in-depth user guide that you can resort to, if you encounter difficulties. How to download and install: Click on the download link and save the package to your desktop. On the 'Choose folder' screen, select the folder to store the files (i.e. C:Program FilesChinaScribe). When the installation is complete, run the application. ChinaScribe will now open. In the dictionary pane, you will see a word named 'Welcome to ChinaScribe' in red letters. Press 'add new' and type the word you are trying to find in the Chinese is an ideal choice for the non-Chinese speaker who needs to work with Chinese characters on his computer. It can be used to create and edit bilingual documents as well as to find transliterations for non-Chinese words by manually searching for them in a list. This program can also be used as a dictionary tool. Features include: - a comprehensive list of entries that contains pronunciations and character sets for each entry - capability to look up individual characters (unlike software that requires you to look up word meanings) - capability to look up a given character by its Pinyin, Guobao code, or other transliteration (very useful if you know a character set and look up a word in a dictionary) - ability to simultaneously look up words by character or Pinyin - rapid text search (built-in database includes over 6.3 million characters) - English dictionary

What's New In?

Find the right word quickly and efficiently! ChinaScribe, the world's first database of Chinese characters and pronunciations, is like a digital "Chinese character dictionary". It allows you to type in any English word, and instantly find its correct Pinyin, Chinese characters, or meaning in the simplest possible way. The ChinaScribe Pinyin converter turns pronunciation into characters, so you can also quickly find the Chinese characters that correspond to an English word. For each entry, you can find its country of origin and use detailed information on its origin. In addition, ChinaScribe includes an extensive Chinese Chinese character dictionary, covering both Traditional and Simplified Chinese characters. Download now and experience the convenience of the world's first database of Chinese characters in a completely new way! Education System Ever wonder how so many talented students wind up at the bottom of the class? In the absence of a viable education system, a good education is so expensive it is literally beyond the reach of an ordinary person to pay for. The poor quality education which results leads to a poor standard of living for the vast majority, who are either part of the working class or the lower middle class. Current history reveals that the education system is not concerned with the well-being of society or with educating the people in the democratic and egalitarian sense. Instead, their purpose is to indoctrinate students and keep them divided into factions of the political and social system and keep them in line. When students are unable to influence the system they become rebels and even the babies are born with an "I hate authority" tag attached to their birth certificate. This is the root cause of the student rebellions and anti-authoritarianism which are seen on college and university campuses on a daily basis. The education system is designed to keep the masses busy with useless intellectual pursuits and diverts them from looking into the true causes of their problems and in the process keeps them in a state of ignorance. There is no reason for children in the West to learn Chinese or Japanese unless they intend to speak those languages and perhaps study them at a later date. The "private sector" elements of the economy are also involved in this system of control. Many private companies are concerned with keeping all their profits and are not interested in the social welfare of society. Thus, they enjoy the benefit of a system that ignores the obvious problems of society and profit from the misery of the society. Besides this, the education system and the capitalist system reinforce each other in a
